

ADSL and Telkom Fibre Pricelist

High-speed Internet Access

We use Telkom infrastructure to provide you with connectivity. Telkom recently launched Telkom fibre. Fibre has changed the way we use the web. For the first time ever video streaming, remote CCTV viewing and IP TV work perfectly. These high bandwidth services need high quality bandwidth and high quality data. Our data packages work through ADSL or Telkom fibre. Telkom fibre provides you with much lower (better) latency (the time it takes for a data packet to travel to the Internet and back) than ADSL. Unfortunately not all areas are Telkom fibre enabled. Contact us to find out if your neighbourhood has Telkom fibre connectivity.

- High quality data with low contention ratios.

- Static IP addresses can be purchased should you need the service.

Questions & Answers

How is the service setup, what equipment is used and how much will it cost?

We will put you in contact with a Jenny Internet Dealer and they will assist you with installation. The ADSL modem or Telkom fibre router each cost roughly about R 600.

What is the difference between ADSL and Telkom fibre?

ADSL works on a copper wire infrastructure which is slow, has interference, is heavily contended and is prone to copper theft.

Telkom fibre works by sending light signals through fibre optic cable. Fibre does not have interference like ADSL and is exponentially faster and better.

Do I need a telkom analogue line with Telkom Fibre?

Telkom fibre does not need a telkom analogue line.

Uncapped 7 day rolling window throttling with threshold boosters.

In this example you can effectively use 160 GB (40GB x 4) without being throttled per month because 7 days fits into 1 month 4 times.
 Booster data is reset at month end.

ADSL and Telkom Fibre uncapped throttling works on a 7 day rolling window. Your connection is throttled when the throttled after limited is reached for the current 7 days.

For example, if your throttled after data is 30 GB per 7 day rolling window.

You can effectively use 120 GB per month before being throttled. 7 days fits into 1 month 4 times.
